IV. BATTLE HONORS. — As authorized by Executive Order 9396 (Section I, War Department Bulletin 22, 1943), superseding Executive Order 9075 (Section III, War Department Bulletin 11, 1942), and Transfer Order 30, 1948, the following unit is cited under the provisions of Air Force Regulation 35-75, in the name of the President of the United States as public evidence of deserved honor and distinction. The citation reads as follows:

> The 67th Tactical Reconnaissance Group distinguished itself by extraordinary heroism in action against an armed enemy from 25 January to 21 April 1951. During that period, the 67th Tactical Reconnaissance Group especially distinguished itself in its primary mission of photographing enemy activity in order to provide valuable information for United Nations forces on capabilities and limitations of the enemy's striking force. Although constantly harrassed by enemy fighters and heavy flak, the Group accomplished intensive surveillance of enemy territory as far north as the Yalu River in unarmed reconnaissance aircraft. In order to photograph the skillfully camouflaged vehicles, troop concentrations, and installations, they flew many missions at low level. This close surveillance enabled United Nations air elements to destroy considerable numbers of enemy troops, transportation facilities and industrial installations. Although assigned the primary mission of photographic reconnaissance, the Group rendered exceptional service in its secondary mission of providing close F-51 fighter support in 1,886 combat sorties. Its contribution to the United Nations air effort is clearly demonstrated by an outstanding record of damage and destruction inflicted on the enemy: two locomotives, 116 pack animals, 432 enemy troops, 132 vehicles and many miscellaneous targets including bridges and supply dumps. The record of this organization shows repeated acts of heroism, gallantry, and personal courage. The impressive total of combat sorties indicates high technical skill of maintenance and ground personnel. Operating under adverse conditions and on a continuous daily schedule, the officers and airmen of the 67th Tactical Reconnaissance Group reflected great credit upon their organization, the Far East Air Forces, and the United States Air Force.

MERITORIOUS UNIT COMMENDATION. - By direction of the Secretary of the Air Force, under the provisions of Air Force Regulation 35-75, the Meritorious Unit Commendation is awarded to the following-named units of the United States Air Force, for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services during the period indicated. The citation reads as follows:

> The 811th Engineer Aviation Battalion (Separate) and the 1st Maintenance Platoon, 622d Engineer Aviation Maintenance Company (Attached) distinguished themselves by exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services, from 10 September 1951 to 30 January 1952. During that period, the Battalion with its attached unit was charged with the construction and repair of 740,000 square yards of runways, taxiways and parking aprons; laying 762,000 square feet of pierced steel plank; constructing and maintaining over thirty miles of airfield perimeter roads and supply routes; and erecting buildings and installing utilities, all of which were vital to the successful prosecution of the Korean Campaign. Continuously combating adverse weather conditions and critical shortages of personnel and materiel, the members of the battalion and attached unit displayed great determination and coordinated effort in successfully discharging their responsibilities. Despite seemingly insurmountable obstacles of supervisory control and timely logistical support attendant to the wide separation of elements of the unit at times along a 225 mile front, the organization met its commitments expeditiously with confidence and enthusiasm, and achieved a record of work accomplishment worthy of emulation throughout the military service. Through their combined resourcefulness, technical skill, and diligent, collective efforts, the members of the 811th Engineer Aviation Battalion (Separate) and the 1st Maintenance Platoon, 622d Engineer Aviation Maintenance Company (Attached), reflected great credit upon themselves, the United States Army Corps of Engineers, and the United States Air Force.

The 61st Troop Carrier Group (Heavy) distinguished itself by extraordinary heroism in action against an enemy of the United Nations, from 13 December 1950 to 21 April 1951. During that period, the Group maintained an unprecedented aerial bridge of logistic support to the United Nations forces in the encircled Port of Hungnam during the evacuation of the city of Seoul, North Korea. With complete disregard of the dangers involved, the Group flew their huge C-54 Skymasters to hazardous airstrips in these beleaguered areas, where the proximity of enemy positions and gun fire often dictated the direction of landings and take-offs. Directly in the face of the enemy, the Group shuttled back and forth, evacuating United Nations troops and airlifting vitally needed supplies and equipment. During the cited period, a total of 36,695 tons of material was carried to the forward areas of Korea and over 64,000 passengers were safely airlifted. In addition, over 1,000 defenseless orphans were evacuated from the doomed city of Seoul, virtually in the face of overwhelming Chinese Communist forces. Through its ceaseless support operation, the Group furnished combat units with air transportability of unprecedented effectiveness and proportion, contributing directly to the attainment of the United Nations objective in Korea. Through their collective diligence, high personal courage in the face of determined enemy opposition, and outstanding devotion to the best interests of the military service, the personnel of the 61st Troop Carrier Group reflected great credit upon themselves, the Far East Air Forces, and the United States Air Force.

The 6127th Air Terminal Group (formerly designated as Combat Cargo Units #1 and #2 and the 6127th Air Terminal Unit), distinguished itself by extraordinary heroism in action against an armed enemy of the United Nations in Korea, from 11 September 1950 to 21 April 1951. During that period, the 6127th Air Terminal Group, a unique organization in the Air Force, was responsible for the onloading and offloading of transport aircraft carrying vital logistical support to United Nations forces during the early, critical stages of the Korean conflict. Maintaining several detachments at various operating locations in Korea, the Group's personnel were often required to operate under enemy fire and the threat of being overrun by enemy forces. Despite these obstacles to orderly operation, the Group demonstrated an exceptionally high state of readiness, proficiency and morale, expeditiously handling tremendous amounts of critical United Nations equipment and supplies by working exhaustive hours during the severe Korean winter. Through its co-ordinated collective efforts, the Group added greater flexibility and rapidity to air transport operation, and aided directly in furnishing maximum air-landed logistic support to combat units. Through the notable contributions they made to the success of United Nations operations in Korea, and their determination and gallantry under enemy fire, the personnel of the 6127th Air Terminal Group reflected great credit upon themselves, the Far East Air Forces, and the United States Air Force.

> CAPTAIN KENDRICK U. REEVES, AO748788, United States Air Force, has been awarded the Cheney Award for the calendar year 1952 for acts of valor and courage performed in the Mediterranean Sea on 27 July 1952. CAPTAIN REEVES, pilot of a SA-16 aircraft, flew his rescue ship to the area in which a British Dakota with 32 passengers including women and children, had ditched at sea. After careful consideration of the hazards involved, CAPTAIN REEVES elected to land his aircraft despite strong winds, ten foot waves and the knowledge that take-off would be virtually impossible. The survivors, most of whom were in the water hanging to semi-inflated life rafts, were taken aboard the rescue aircraft in a sick and semi-conscious condition. Two hours later a British destroyer arrived. Attempts to transfer passengers to the destroyer using the destroyer's whaleboat only resulted in damaging the SA-16. CAPTAIN REEVES, thereupon, ordered two of his own life rafts inflated and these were filled with passengers and towed, in three trips, to the destroyer. Despite his own sea-sickness and that of his crew, CAPTAIN REEVES refused to abandon his damaged aircraft and remained in command of it during towing operations to Bengasi which, complicated by a series of mishaps, consumed three days.

THIRD CITATION

The 307th Bombardment Wing, Medium, distinguished itself by extraordinary heroism in action against an armed enemy of the United Nations from 11 July 1953 to 27 July 1953. During that period, the 307th Bombardment Wing, Medium, utilizing B-29 aircraft, flew ninety-four sorties and dropped 860 tons of bombs on enemy targets in Communist held North Korea. The distinguished character of operations of this unit was demonstrated by the determination with which aircrews pressed the highly successful bombardment of the Sinanju rail bridge complex on 11 July 1953 when long cuts were made in three bridges. Again, on 20 July 1953, the Wing demonstrated outstanding airmanship, smooth coordination and high courage during a mission against Sinuiju Airfield, where despite severe icing, intense enemy antiaircraft fire and coordinated searchlight-fighter opposition, the attack was executed as ordered, rendering the airfield unserviceable. On 17 July 1953, the Wing demonstrated a high order of flexibility and versatility in carrying out a major support mission in very close proximity to United Nations Ground Forces. During this operation, seventeen individual aiming points were struck in a high level night attack against an enemy troop concentration. This highly successful attack contributed substantially to the stabilization of United Nations positions during a bitterly contested campaign. Through their collective professional skill, high courage and devotion to the best interests of the military service, the personnel of the 307th Bombardment Wing, Medium, made a significant contribution to the achievement of United Nations objectives in Korea, and reflected great credit upon themselves, the Far East Air Forces and the United States Air Force.

and intense flak, the units were never deterred from bombing their targets, nor did they sustain losses of either aircraft or personnel. The high success of the units' combat operations against the enemy's major logistic complexes was a major contributing factor toward inducing the enemy to conclude an Armistice. STAFF SERGEANT IVAN M. BROWN, AF15198975, distinguished himself by an act of heroism involving voluntary risk of life on 9 December 1953, at Geiger Field, Spokane, Washington. On that date, an F-86D aircraft loaded with live rockets crashed and started to burn at the end of the runway. SERGEANT BROWN, as Crash Rescue Crew Chief, proceeded with one civilian to the burning aircraft to find the pilot trapped in the wreckage. Although the plane was burning violently about the loaded rocket section and it was impossible to apply an extinguishing agent, SERGEANT BROWN completely disregarded his personal safety by freeing the pilot from the cockpit and removing him, with the aid of the civilian, approximately thirty-five feet from the burning aircraft before the first rocket exploded. The courage, fortitude, and heroism displayed by SERGEANT BROWN on this occasion, reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

observations, together with those of other members of the test team, and the analysis of the records obtained in these tests brought out certain deficiencies in the ejection technique, knowledge of which speeded the development of necessary modifications. The resultant changes will improve the safety value of the downward ejection seat and will undoubtedly lead to great saving of lives. Through his courageous action, at the highest personal risk, CAPTAIN SPERRY has expedited the improvement of this life saving equipment and reflected the utmost credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

FIRST LIEUTENANT HENRY P. NIELSEN, AO1863232, distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism while participating in aerial flight between 7 and 21 October 1953. During this period, LIEUTENANT NIELSEN executed hazardous tests of a downward ejection seat from a B-47 aircraft at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, while engaging in the first live tests of this escape system. In a test at the speed of 386 knots he sustained major injuries due to an unforeseen deficiency in the ejection system. His careful observations, together with those of other members of the test team, and the analysis of the records obtained through these tests reflected certain deficiencies in the ejection technique, knowledge of which speeded the development of necessary modifications, thereby effecting a great saving of lives. The outstanding courage, fortitude and self-sacrifice displayed by LIEUTENANT NIELSEN have expedited improvements of this life saving equipment, and have helped to demonstrate its feasibility to Air Force personnel. His actions in voluntarily risking his life on behalf of his fellowman are in the finest traditon of the United States Air Force.

MASTER SERGEANT GEORGE A. POST, AF14080614, distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism while participating in aerial flight between 7 and 21 October 1953. SERGEANT POST executed a hazardous test of a downward ejection seat from a B-47 aircraft at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, while engaging in the first live tests of this escape system. These dangerous tests demonstrated a deficiency in the present ejection system, the correction of which will be of great importance in saving lives in emergency escapes. SERGEANT POST'S careful observations, together with those of other members of the test team, and the analysis of the records obtained through these tests, speeded the development of modifications which will improve the safety of the downward ejection seat. SERGEANT POST'S courageous action at grave personal risk of life, reflects the highest degree of fortitude and devotion to duty and is in the finest traditon of the United States Air Force.

semi-conscious pilot was trapped in the cockpit and that smoke was billowing from the plane. LIEUTENANT BURD seized a tire lug wrench and ran to the downed plane. As he reached the aircraft, the compressor section of the plane exploded, blowing fire and pieces of metal out the tail pipe. As the two officers smashed and tore away the cockpit, the jet fuel around the plane began to burn. Without thought for his own safety, LIEUTENANT BURD untangled the pilot's bail out bottle from the aircraft and lifted him from the plane. By his exemplary courage, and devotion to his fellow man, LIEUTENANT BURD has reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

STAFF SERGEANT JOSEPH L. BELISLE, AF11255293, distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life on 11 September 1954 at Brady Air Base, Kyushu, Japan. Following the crash of an F-86D aircraft, he rushed to the scene, and, disregarding the intense heat of the flaming wreckage, ran to the aid of the pilot staggering near the aircraft. Without concern for the hazards of exploding gasoline and ammunition, he removed the parachute harness from the pilot; guided him safely away from the wreckage and administered emergency first aid. Despite the hazards involved and the possibility of serious injury to himself, SERGEANT BELISLE displayed outstanding courage and selflessness in this humanitarian rescue. By his courage and heroism SERGEANT BELISLE reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

STAFF SERGEANT THURSTON G. MADLOCK, AF18366144, distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life at Goldsboro, North Carolina, on 12 April 1954. SERGEANT MADLOCK was in charge of the two crash units which responded to an urgent call for assistance from the city of Goldsboro, North Carolina, where a propane explosion had destroyed four buildings and five persons were known to have been trapped in the burning wreckage. Immediately after arriving at the disaster scene, SERGEANT MADLOCK, with complete disregard for his own safety, crawled beneath the ruins of one of the devastated buildings and recovered three victims who had perished in the holocaust, thereby permitting positive identification of the remains. By his courage, devotion to duty, and selflessness SERGEANT MADLOCK reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

respiration. The exemplary heroism and courage displayed by SEGEANT MAHLER reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

STAFF SEGEANT JOHN P. SHEWBERT, AF14137767, distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life at Canal Point, Florida on 23 January 1955. SERGEANT SHEWBERT hearing cries for help, immediately reacted to the emergency by running to the top of the Lake Okeechobee levee and noticed that a young boy was clinging to an overturned boat about one hundred and fifty yards from shore. Without hesitation and with complete disregard for his own personal safety, SERGEANT SHEWBERT jumped into the muddy water and swam, with another volunteer, to the capsized boat whereupon the young boy told him his brother had disappeared beneath the surface. After ascertaining that the lad clinging to the boat was in no immediate danger, SERGEANT SHEWBERT began numerous dives and underwater searches for the missing boy who was eventually located by the other rescuer and started toward shore. In a short time the other volunteer was overcome by exhaustion and SERGEANT SHEWBERT carried the youth the remaining distance to shore where he was revived by artificial respiration. The exemplary heroism and courage displayed by SERGEANT SHEWBERT reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

IV. DISTINGUISHED UNIT CITATION. — As authorized by Executive Order 9396 (section I, War Department Bulletin 22, 1943), superseding Executive Order 9075 (section III, War Department Bulletin 11, 1942), and Transfer Order 30, 1948, the following unit is cited under the provisions of Air Force Regulation 35-75, in the name of the President of the United States as public evidence of deserved honor and distinction. The citation reads as follows:

> The 91st Composite Wing, Royal Australian Air Force, distinguished itself by extraordinary heroism in action against an armed enemy of the United Nations from 3 November 1950 to 24 January 1951. Through the efforts of its 77th Fighter Squadron, the Wing was able to mount nine hundred and eighty one effective sorties against the enemy forces in Korea, dropping hundreds of tons of high explosives and expending hundreds of thousands of rounds of fifty caliber ammunition. During this period, the 91st Composite Wing, utilizing F-51 (Mustang) aircraft to its fullest extent, destroyed thirteen locomotives, thirty-seven railroad cars, six bridges, five tanks, two hundred thirty-eight vehicles, thirteen marshalling yards, twelve supply dumps, twenty gun emplacements, approximately twelve hundred buildings and an unestimated number of enemy troops. All of this was accomplished despite the fact that during the initial outbreak of the Korean conflict the 77th Fighter Squadron, 91st Composite Wing, was manned as an Occupational Force, with insufficient supplies to support tactical operations to the maximum. Only through the extended and continued effort of every officer and airman was it possible to achieve this high degree of effectiveness. Undismayed by the necessity of working up to eighteen hours a day in order to fulfill the Wing's combat commitments, all personnel consistently demonstrated high esprit de corps, outstanding technical skill, and cooperative spirit in the performance of their duties. The courage, resourcefulness and devotion to duty displayed by each and every member of the 91st Composite Wing, Royal Australian Air Force, were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service, and reflected great credit upon themselves, the Royal Australian Air Force, and the United Nations Command.

V. AIR FORCE OUTSTANDING UNIT AWARD. — So much of Section IV, General Orders 100, Department of the Air Force, 1955, pertaining to award of the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award to the 4020th Bombardment Squadron, Medium, as reads "The 4020th Bombardment Squadron, Medium, distinguished itself by exceptionally meritorious service from 5 November 1950 to 9 May 1955, while supporting the strategic reconnaissance effort of the United States on a world wide basis" is amended to read "The 4020th Bombardment Squadron, Medium, (formerly the 340th Bombardment Squadron, Medium, and the 343d Strategic Reconnaissance Squadron, Medium, Electronics) distinguished itself by exceptionally meritorious service from 5 November 1950 to 9 May 1955, while supporting the strategic reconnaissance effort of the United States on a world wide basis.

VI. INSTALLATIONS. — 1. Effective 16 January 1956, the jurisdiction, control and accountability over 1.82 acres of land at the Army Reserve Training Center, Birmingham, Alabama, was transferred from the Department of the Army to the Department of the Air Force and was redesignated Birmingham Air Reserve Center. This installation was assigned to Continental Air Command on an active status.

The 483d Troop Carrier Wing (M), its assigned and attached units, distinguished themselves by outstanding service from 1 August 1953 to 10 September 1954. When directed to furnish airlift support to friendly foreign forces fighting communist military aggression in the Far East, the assumption of this additional responsibility necessitated the extension of administrative and logistic lines to four major geographical areas of the Far East. During this peroid, forty-one pilots, civilian and foreign military personnel, were trained in C-119 airlift operation, air drop techniques and troop carrier functions thereby later enabling them to assume airlift responsibilities in the affected area. During one phase of this operation, the joint efforts of the Wing were instrumental in transporting 286,025 pounds of critically needed supplies for use by the besieged defenders of the threatened country. In addition to this responsibility, the 483d Troop Carrier Wing (M) continued its support of Korean based Air Force units by airlifting over 90,000 passengers, transporting over 40,000 tons of cargo and dropping 10,000 paratroopers in combined training exercises with the 187th Regimental Combat Team. Through this demonstration of professional skill and devotion to duty, the 483d Troop Carrier Wing (M), its assigned and attached units, have reflected great credit upon themselves and the United States Air Force.

The 1005th Special Investigations Group (IG) distinguished itself by outstanding accomplishment from 20 November 1951 to 15 June 1956 by providing an exceptional counterintelligence and criminal investigative service to all echelons of the United States Air Force. During this critical period of our Nation's history, the exemplary devotion to duty and extraordinary professional competence consistently displayed by all members of this organization resulted in highly significant contributions to the maintenance of the integrity of the Air Force and to its security against subversive, espionage and sabotage threats of potential enemies. The selfless devotion to duty of all personnel of the 1005th Special Investigations Group (IG) and their superior professional accomplishments have reflected the greatest credit upon themselves and the United States Air Force.

FIRST LIEUTENANT RAYMOND F. GIRARD, JR., 23345A distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life on 10 April 1956, at Yuma County Airport, Arizona. On that date, prior to take-of, an F-86D exploded and began to burn. In escaping from the aircraft the pilot did not shut off the power to the engine. The flaming aircraft began moving at 10 to 15 miles per hour toward the flight line and possible collision with F-86's and B-45's parked on the ramp. LIEUTENANT GIRARD noting that the fireman could not extinguish the flames before a collision, ran to the burning F-86, dropped the step, and with difficulty, because of the spraying foamite, mounted the aircraft and shut off the engine. The exemplary courage and heroism displayed by LIEUTENANT GIRARD have reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS LEROY D. WRIGLESWORTH, RA28786247, United States Army, distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life on 30 March 1956 at Klamath Falls, Oregon. PRIVATE WRIGLESWORTH was a passenger of a C-45H which burst into flames after crash landing at Klamath Falls, Oregon. The only survivors, PRIVATE WRIGLESWORTH and another passenger, blacked out temporarily upon impact. After regaining consciousness, he started to get out of the aircraft when he heard the other passenger call for help. With complete disregard for his own safety, and despite painful burns on his hands and face, a fractured left ankle and the further possibility of imminent explosion from the burning aircraft, PRIVATE WRIGLESWORTH turned back to assist the trapped, semiconscious passenger. Releasing the safety belt, he freed the trapped victim from the wreckage, and bodily assisted her through a tear in the burning fuselage. By his courage, heroic and unselfish action, PRIVATE WRIGLESWORTH has reflected great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States.

The 6007th Reconnaissance Group (Composite) distinguished itself by exceptionally meritorious service in support of military reconnaissance and intelligence operations from 14 October 1954 to 30 June 1956. Despite organizational problems and personnel shortages, the professional skill and devotion to duty consistently displayed by members of the 6007th Reconnaissance Group (Composite) were instrumental factors in contributing to the successful accomplishment of the assigned mission. By the superior manner in which it discharged its numerous responsibilities, the 6007th Reconnaissance Group (Composite) has reflected great credit upon itself and the United States Air Force.

The 33d Communications Squadron distinguished itself by exceptionally meritorious achievement during the period 5 February 1955 to 31 August 1956. During this period, the 33d Communications Squadron was delegated the responsibility of planning, programming and accomplishing the decentralization of a major Strategic Air Command relay center, coupled with a sudden major increase in the operational commitments of the unit. The highly successful execution of this mission, completed on schedule, required the development of an entirely new concept; organizing, equipping and manning the unit in an unprecedented manner; establishing and accomplishing a suitable training program; and ultimately establishing the finest record for operational speed of teletype message handling and relay transmission within the Strategic Air Command. The outstanding manner in which all personnel of the 33d Communications Squadron executed these exacting assignments reflects great credit upon themselves and the United States Air Force.

Without thought for his own safety and despite the hazard of fire and the possibility of an explosion, SERGEANT GREENLEE unhesitatingly continued to fight the fire and direct the efforts of the launching crew until the flames had been extinguished. His decisive actions averted serious injury to the personnel and the loss of valuable equipment. By his quick thinking and exemplary courage, SERGEANT GREENLEE has reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

STAFF SERGEANT (then AIRMAN FIRST CLASS) JOE B. WILLIAMS, AF16457547 distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life on 17 November 1956 at Lincoln Air Force Base, Nebraska. Despite the personal danger involved, he persevered in his efforts until he succeeded in removing the flaming clothing from the victims' bodies and leading them to a place of safety. He then returned to the area and assisted in preventing the flaming fuel from spreading to the refueling pits. By his exemplary courage and quick thinking, SERGEANT WILLIAMS has reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

V. MACKAY TROPHY. – Award of the Mackay Trophy for the calendar year 1957:

The Mackay Trophy for 1957 is awarded to the 93rd Bombardment Wing, Strategic Air Command, for the most meritorious flight of the year. In January 1957, three B-52 aircraft of the 93rd Bombardment Wing successfully completed the first non-stop, round-the-world flight of jet bombardment aircraft. This historic flight of 45 hours and 19 minutes, covering a distance of 24,235 miles, at an average speed of 543 miles per hour, over all sorts of terrain and through all types of weather, was executed precisely as planned without incident. Despite the absence of advance information to the air crews or any other special preparations, this historic flight, conducted with production model aircraft, was consistently characterized by superior airmanship and exceptional flying proficiency. The outstanding professional ability and technical competence, exhibited by the 93rd Bombardment Wing in planning and executing this internationally significant air operation, reflect the highest credit upon the organization and the United States Air Force.

VI. CHENEY AWARD. – Award of the Cheney Award for the calendar year 1957:

KERR, AO2226375, United States Air Force, was selected to receive the Cheney Award for the year 1957 for his valor and extreme fortitude performed in aerial flight near Yokota Air Base, Japan, on 13 October 1957. While flying as an aircraft observer in a T-33 jet aircraft at 29,000 feet, LIEUTENANT KERR became aware that the pilot in the forward seat had lapsed into unconsciousness. Although not a pilot himself, LIEUTENANT KERR elected to attempt landing the aircraft, rather than parachute to safety and abandon the stricken pilot to certain death. Despite the seemingly unsurmountable handicaps of darkness, a critically low fuel supply, and the disadvantage of flying from the rear seat, LIEUTENANT KERR, with utter disregard for his own life, guided the aircraft to a safe landing. The heroism and selfless humanitarianism displayed by LIEUTENANT KERR reflect the highest credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

SERGEANT ATKINSON immediately responded to the emergency. Without regard for his own personal safety, SERGEANT ATKINSON entered the fume filled tank, and with the assistance of another volunteer, removed the victim to a place where he immediately applied artificial respiration. By his quick thinking and exemplary courage, SERGEANT ATKINSON has reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

STAFF SERGEANT DONALD F. ORR, AF24776045 distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life at Little Rock Air Force Base, Arkansas, on 28 March 1958. On that date, when notified that two airmen had been overcome by fumes while performing maintenance in the fuel cell of an RB-47 aircraft, SERGEANT ORR immediately responded to the emergency. With complete disregard for his own safety, SERGEANT ORR removed one of the victims from the fuel cell and, with the assistance of another volunteer, persevered in his efforts and removed the second victim to a place where he immediately applied artificial respiration. By his quick thinking and exemplary courage, SERGEANT ORR has reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

STAFF SERGEANT RAYMOND A. SCHENDEL, AF20657296 distinguished himself by heroism involving voluntary risk of life on 12 September 1958 at Wells, Norfolk, England. On that date, SERGEANT SCHENDEL observed a woman and four children stranded on a marsh knoll that had been cut off from shore by the incoming tide. Without hesitation SERGEANT SCHENDEL secured a rowboat and attempted their rescue. Finding it impossible to row against the tide, he abandoned the rowboat and without thought for his own safety, waded fully clothed into the swift and rising tide. Although repeatedly swept off his feet by the current, SERGEANT SCHENDEL persevered in his humanitarian efforts and succeeded in removing two of the children to the safety of the shore. Recognizing his state of exhaustion, SERGEANT SCHENDEL then obtained the aid of a fisherman and with his assistance rescued the three remaining individuals. The exemplary courage and heroism of SERGEANT SCHENDEL reflect great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

The Koren Kolligian, Jr. Trophy is awarded to FIRST LIEUTENANT JAMES E. OBENAUF, AO3057997, United States Air Force, in recognition of an outstanding feat of airmanship in coping with an inflight emergency in a Strategic Air Command B-47 aircraft on the night of 28 April 1958.

LIEUTENANT OBENAUF was a copilot in a B-47 flying a night mission at 34,000 feet. The aircraft experienced a fire and an explosion in one of the engines. In attempting to bail out, LIEUTENANT OBENAUF saw that the instructor navigator was lying unconscious in the aircrew compartment walkway. The LIEUTENANT returned to his copilot seat and, despite the severe difficulties induced by a burning engine and a missing canopy and downward escape hatch cover, managed to bring the crippled B-47 to a safe landing.

Under extremely adverse conditions, and with disregard for his personal safety, LIEUTENANT OBENAUF rescued a fellow officer from certain death and prevented the loss of a valuable aircraft. FIRST LIEUTENANT JAMES E. OBENAUF'S outstanding accomplishment reflects great credit upon himself, upon the Strategic Air Command, and upon the United States Air Force.

VII. INSTALLATION. – Effective 15 April 1959, the Momote Ordnance Area, Tokyo, Japan was transferred from the Department of the Army to the Department of the Air Force. Concurrently, jurisdiction, control and accountability was assigned to the Pacific Air Command.

I. MACKAY TROPHY. - Award of the Mackay Trophy for the calendar year 1958:

The Mackay Trophy for 1958 is awarded to the Tactical Air Command Air Strike Force X-Ray Tango, for the most meritorious flight of the year. During the period 30 August to 9 September 1958, the Tactical Air Command Composite Air Strike Force X-Ray Tango distinguished itself in preparing and deploying tactical and support elements to the Far East. The speed and efficiency with which these units completed the hazardous trans-Pacific flights are evidence of the outstanding airmanship of the pilots and the skill and effectiveness of the support personnel. In slightly more than 16 flying hours, after being alerted in the United States, the first tactical element of the nuclear strike force was on combat patrol in the Far East trouble area. The outstanding professional ability and technical competence exhibited by all elements of the Task force in planning and executing this internationally significant air operation, reflect the highest credit upon members of the Tactical Air Command Air Strike Force and the United States Air Force.

II. CHENEY AWARD. - Award of the Cheney Award for the calendar year 1958:

FIRST LIEUTENANT JAMES E. OBENAUF, AO3057997, United States Air Force, was selected to receive the Cheney Award for the year 1958 for his valor, extreme fortitude and devotion to his fellow man on 28 April 1958. Flying as co-pilot of a B-47 aircraft on a routine high altitude training mission, LIEUTENANT OBENAUF'S aircraft developed an extremely hazardous fire. Following an order to abandon the aircraft, LIEUTENANT OBENAUF discovered an unconscious crew member in the aft part of the crew compartment. With selfless disregard for his personal safety, and despite the fact that he was numbed from extreme cold and nearly blinded by the intense force of the slipstream and flying debris, he returned to his crew position and assumed control of the aircraft. Displaying outstanding heroism and professional airmanship, he successfully landed the aircraft thus saving the life of his fellow crew member. The singularly distinctive achievement of LIEUTENANT OBENAUF reflect the highest credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.
